Eagleson Educational Leader

Another of a Series of Intimate Life Stories of Circleville Citizens.

BY DALE STRAWSER

The realization of a dream which he had always had in childhood days has been the enjoyment of John O. Eagleson, prominent Circleville citizen. To become a school teacher was his greatest ambition, and not only has his dreams come true but he has risen to the highest office our public schools have, superintendent of Circleville public schools.

Mr. Eagleson's early education was begun in the public schools in Cambridge, his native city, and in rural schools in Guernsey-co. He entered the Muskingum College Academy where he did high school work. College work for a bachelor's degree was accomplished at Wooster and Muskingum colleges, the latter of which he is a graduate. He did graduate work in education for about two years at the University of Chicago and Ohio State and expects to be in attendance the full quarter at the latter this summer.

BEGAN IN COUNTRY

His first teaching experience was in a rural school east of Cambridge in Guernsey-co. Later he became principal of the Quaker high school which office he held for eight years.

Mr. Eagleson then accepted the position as head of the science department in the Cambridge high school, where Miss Velma Watson, teacher at the local high school, was a former pupil.

After serving as a teacher there for seven years he came to Circleville in 1918 to accept the principalship of Circleville high school. For two years he held this position after which he was elected to the superintendency he still holds.

One of his beliefs is that every teacher should keep growing. Some of his life record we are justified in saying that he practices what he preached.

Mr. Eagleson has always done extensive reading in education and is always aware of new educational methods as they arose. He takes active part in the following organizations; Central Ohio Teachers' Association, Ohio Educational Association, Superintendents' Department of the National Education Association.

He has belonged to teachers' organizations since he began teaching, and has been on committees and served as an official several times.

Perhaps some of the things which have helped to make him successful in any school work he ever engaged in are the hints in the many educational magazines that he takes. He spends over one hundred dollars a year on reading matter.

HAS CERTIFICATE

Life teaching is assured him as he has held a one-year, two-year, three-year, five-year and eight-year county certificate, and now holds both the state elementary life and high school life certificates. All these were granted by examination.

Mr. Eagleson's present duties as superintendent of the city's public schools are: to meet with the board of education, make all appointments of teachers to be confirmed by the board, to place the teachers, to arrange the course of studies, to supervise the teaching, to hold teacher's meetings, to order textbooks and other supplies, to meet agents, to act as mediator and arbitrator of difficulties between pupils and parents, to issue teacher's monthly bulletins, to hold office as clerk of board of examiners, to classify pupils, to attend to correspondence, to sign all graduation diplomas, and to provide for the keeping of all school records.

The subject of this delineation gave one of the things needed for our local high school as being more attention given to physical education. Having always been interested in athletics himself, he realizes the students' necessity of knowledge of proper exercises. He is always active in clean and wholesome sports, and played on the baseball and basketball teams at

May-Pole Party in Movieland's Coconut Grove Is Scene Depicted.

The high school gymnasium has been transformed into "Coconut Grove, Hollywood, California" for the benefit of the Junior-Senior banquet Monday night.

Gay colors and characters are to have full sway as the scene is to represent a May Pole Party in Movieland. The decoration has been under the supervision of Miss A. J. Lyle of W. Mount-st. and decoration chairman, Jeanette Bower.

All May flowers can be seen somewhere in the garden. In the center is a large May Pole around which are arranged the tables.

The colors of the class of '30, blue and gold have afforded the plan for the ceiling which is done by the members of the decoration committee which includes Jeanette Bower, Mildred Greenlee, Eloise Eldridge, Edward Bost, Bernese Dearth, Mary Ryan, Abram Gordon, Donald Rader, Lucille Kirkwood, Phyllis Wagner, Grace Steele, Charles Brown and Earl Millrons.

The music will be furnished by "Waring's Pennsylvanians." These great stars will take part in the program. Gary Cooper, Ernest Torrence, Sydney Blackmer, John Boles, Lawrence Tibbett and many others from Hollywood. There are to be many surprise spots on the program.

BOBBY JONES

WINS TITLE

Atlanta Wizard Defeats Roger Wethered 7 Up and 6 To Go In Amateur.

BY F. A. WRAY

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland May 31—Bobby Jones today won undisputed supremacy of amateur golf of the world by capturing the British amateur golf championship, defeating Roger Wethered of Great Britain.

The Atlanta wizard won by the convincing score seven up and six to play.

By his victory over Wethered, Jones added to his already over-filled bag of titles the most coveted amateur golf trophy of the world.

A heavy favorite to win the honors of today's 36 hole championship the gruelling competition through which he was forced to come earlier in the week to get within striking distance of the title. Jones early justified the faith of his backers by taking a commanding lead over his British rival.

Going into the turn of the morning round all square Jones assumed a dominating position in the match on the homeward march, finishing the morning round four up.

CITY OBSERVES MEMORIAL DAY WITH SERVICES

American Legion Drum Corps Furnishes Fine Music In Premiere.

BY ROBERT ROONEY

Music, color and military order featured the progress of Circleville's Memorial Day parade which started from the corner of Court and Main-sts at 10:30 a. m. The feature of the event was the appearance of the city's newly acquired musical group, the Howard Hall Post Drum Corps led by Drum Major Frank Battleton.

At four minutes till 10 a. m. there were approximately 200 people at the intersections of Court and Main-sts waiting for the appearance of the parade. At the same time the fire bell rang taking at least half of the spectators from the corner and sending them hurrying to the scene of the fire.

However, at 10:40 when the parade formed in marching line 500 persons were standing at attention. The marching ranks were led by Captain Joseph M. Lynch, officer of the day. He was followed by the members of the city police department and city officials, Legion Drum Corps, colors, Capital University Band, Ohio National Guard, Boy Scouts and the school children.

The school children numbered 150, most of whom had waited since eight o'clock for the big parade. Each was proud of his flag donated by the American Legion and the flowers donated by the Ladies-Auxiliary.

The scene of the parade was viewed by every citizen along N. Court-st either from their porch or from parked auto.

When the parade had reached the cemetery at 10:45, the spectators there numbered several hundred. Services here were held by the Daughters of the Union Veterans.

Rev. F. A. Johnson, Ed Ebert, commander of American Legion and Joseph M. Lynch, captain of the day, were the speakers at the Forest cemetery in the Memorial day services.

"This day is memorial day when every one mourns with patriotic devotion for the loved one and the lost ones. Let us recall that we may strengthen our lives to ones of honor and patriotism," said Joseph M. Lynch in his address.

"Every soldier's grave is an altar of patriotism," said Lawrence Johnson in a short but well worded address. The other speakers of the day was Mr. Ed Ebert, whose phrases fittingly closed the services.

During the services the Capital University band played "Nearer My God to Thee," and "Star Spangled Banner."

Taps were sounded in the section of the cemetery where the fallen braves are resting. A salute was fired over the graves in the soldiers' lot by the Motor Transport Co.

CHEERS GREET GREAT GERMAN GRAF ZEPPELIN

Accident Occurs at Lakehurst Several Hurt—Complete Dangerous Flight

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEY

LAKEHURST, N. J., May 31—Escorted by two dirigibles and five airplanes, the Graf Zeppelin, monarch of the air, landed at the Lakehurst Naval Air Station field at 7:25 o'clock this morning, completing the fifth lap of a 12,000 mile tri-continental flight from Friedrichshafen, Germany, via South America.

1,000-WATCH

Cheers from about 1,000 spectators greeted the German dirigible as she swooped gracefully across the field from the south and swooped down to a graceful landing. She presented a pretty picture as she nosed in promptly, her silvery sides gleaming in the bright morning sunlight.

The Graf had left Friedrichshafen, South America and north to Lakehurst, a distance of 12,000 miles, was 210 hours and 57 minutes.

A slight accident marred the landing of the Graf. Immediately the dirigible came to rest on the field, several hundred yards from the hangar, the ground crew of two hundred marines rushed forward to assist in the landing. They were followed by a throng of spectators.

Ropes were dropped from the dirigible, in pulling the big ship into line preparatory to passing her into the hangar, about 100 marines hanging from the ropes were hoisted twenty feet into the air when a run of what was called a "bump" occurred.

ONE MAN HURT

One man was perhaps seriously injured and several others sustained minor bruises. The injured man was carried to an automobile, his name was Kinyari, an assistant carpenter's mate.

The Graf was attached to Lakehurst's new portable mooring mast. Then tractors, attached to the mast, backed the dirigible into the hangar and, at 8:10 a. m. the big ship was snugly berthed. The passengers remained on the Zeppelin while the procedure was carried out.

The dirigibles that escorted the Graf Zeppelin into Lakehurst were the Los Angeles which left the hangar here early today, and the Vigilante which had been quartered at the Government proving ground at Aberdeen, Md.

At 8:30 the passengers disembarked and were taken to the welfare building to be questioned by the customs authorities.

Commander Hugo Eckener of the Graf was escorted to the press headquarters in the hangar where he was interviewed by a hundred or more reporters. He was attired in a blue uniform and blue cap with a gold insignia upon it. He did not appear at all fatigued. He smoked a cigarette as he gave his answers through an interpreter.

He said the squall the Graf Zeppelin went through last night, between Bermuda and the Atlantic coast north of Florida, was the worst the Graf Zeppelin had ever encountered. It was even worse than the storm on a previous trans-Atlantic voyage of which tore a fin off the ship's side.

BOY DROVE THRU

STREET, ARRESTED

Lutz Ashbrook, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Price Ashbrook of state route 104, is to appear before Mayor E. T. Hedges Saturday at 7:30 p. m. to answer to a charge of driving his Ford touring car through a closed street.

He was taken into custody Friday by Safety Director L. E. Miller.

ADMINISTRATORS

ARE APPOINTED

Harry and Ray Ridgway of Derby, O., were named administrators of the estate of the late Samuel Harvey Ridgway also of Derby, O., in probate court Thursday.

The estate comprised chiefly of real estate is estimated to be worth $15,500. Charles W. Taylor, J. M. Elmer and T. E. Miller were appointed appraisers.

CHEERS GREET GREAT GERMAN GRAF ZEPPELIN

Accident Occurs at Lakehurst, Several Hurt—Completes Dangerous Flight.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
LAKEHURST, N. J., May 31

Escorted by two dirigibles and five airplanes, the Graf Zeppelin, monarch of the air, landed at the Lakehurst Naval Air Station field at 7:25 o'clock this morning, completing the fifth lap of a 12,000 mile tri-continental flight from Friedrichshafen, Germany, via South America.

1,000 WATCH

Cheers from about 1,000 spectators greeted the German dirigible as she swooped gracefully across the field from the south and swooped down to a graceful landing. She presented a pretty picture as she nosed in proudly, her silvery sides gleaming in the bright morning sunlight.

The Graf had left Friedrichshafen South America and north to Lakehurst, a distance of 12,000 miles, was 210 hours and 57 minutes.

A slight accident marred the landing of the Graf. Immediately the dirigible came to rest on the field, several hundred yards from the hangar, the ground crew of two hundred marines rushed forward to assist in the landing. They were followed by a throng of spectators.

Ropes were dropped from the dirigible, in pulling the big ship into line preparatory to pushing her into the hangar, about 15 marines, hanging from the ropes, were hoisted twenty feet into the air when a gust of wind lifted a free swinging section of the dirigible. As their hands became tired they dropped like monkeys from the branches of a tree.

ONE MAN HURT

One man was perhaps seriously injured and several others sustained minor bruises. The injured man was carried to an automobile, he said his name was Kinery, an assistant carpenter mate.

The Graf was attached to Lakehurst's new portable mooring mast. Then tractors, attached to the mast, backed the dirigible into the hangar and, at 8:10 a. m. the big ship was snugly berthed. The passengers remained on the Zeppelin while the procedure was carried out.

The dirigibles that escorted the Graf Zeppelin into Lakehurst were the Los Angeles which left the hangar here early today, and the Vigilante which had been quartered at the Government proving ground at Aberdeen, Md.

At 8:30 the passengers disembarked and were taken to the welfare building to be questioned by the customs authorities.

Commander Hugo Eckener of the Graf was escorted to the press headquarters in the hangar where he was interviewed by a hundred or more reporters. He was attired in a blue uniform and blue cap with a gold insignia upon it. He did not appear at all fatigued. He smoked a cigarette as he gave his answers through an interpreter.

He said the squall the Graf Zeppelin went through last night, between Bermuda and the Atlantic coast north of Florida, was the worst the Graf Zeppelin had ever encountered. It was even worse than the storm on a previous trans-Atlantic voyage of which tore a fin off the ship's side.

BOY DROVE THRU STREET, ARRESTED

Lutz Ashbrook, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Price Ashbrook of state route 104, is to appear before Mayor B. T. Hedges Saturday at 7:30 p. m. to answer to a charge of driving his Ford touring car through a closed street.

He was taken into custody Friday by Safety Director L. E. Miller.

ADMINISTRATORS ARE APPOINTED

Harry and Ray Ridgway of Derby, O., were named administrators of the estate of the late Samuel Harvey Ridgway also of Derby, O., in probate court Thursday.

The estate comprised chiefly of real estate is estimated to be worth $15,500. Charles W. Taylor, J. M. Blaine and T. E. Riddle were appointed appraisers.

JUNIOR-SENIOR BANQUET WILL BE BIG AFFAIR

May-Pole Party in Movieland's Coconut Grove Is Scene Depicted.

The high school gymnasium has been transformed into Coconut Grove, Hollywood, California for the benefit of the Junior-Senior banquet Monday.

Gay colors and characters are to have full sway as the scene is to represent a May Pole Party in Movieland. The decoration has been under the supervision of Miss A. J. Lyle of W. Mount-st. and decoration chairman, Jeanette Bower. All May flowers can be seen somewhere in the garden. In the center is a large May Pole around which are arranged the tables.

The colors of the class of '30, blue and gold have afforded the plan for the ceiling which is done by the members of the decoration committee which includes Jeanette Bower, Mildred Greenlee, Eloise Eldridge, Edward Bost, Bernese Dearth, Mary Ryan, Abram Gordon, Donald Rader, Lucille Kirkwood, Phyllis Wagner, Grace Steele, Charles Brown and Earl Millrons.

The music will be furnished by "Waring's Pennsylvanians." These great stars will take part in the program: Gary Cooper, Ernest Torrence, Sydney Blackner, John Boles, Lawrence Tibbett and many others from Hollywood. There are to be many surprise spots on the program.

BOBBY JONES WINS TITLE

Atlanta Wizard Defeats Roger Wethered 7 Up and 6 To Go In Amateur.

BY F. A. WRAY
ST. ANDREWS, Scotland May 31—Bobby Jones today won undisputed supremacy of amateur golf of the world by capturing the British amateur golf championship, defeating Roger Wethered of Great Britain.

The Atlanta wizard won by the convincing score seven up, and six to play.

By his victory over Wethered, Jones added to his already over-filled bag of titles the most coveted amateur golf trophy of the world.

A heavy favorite to win the honors of today's 36 hole championship the gruelling competition through which he was forced to come earlier in the week to get within striking distance of the title, Jones early justified the faith of his backers by taking a commanding lead over his British rival.

Going into the turn of the morning round last square, Jones assumed a dominating position in the match on the homeward march, finishing the morning round four up.

Religion Effective by Co-operation

Why was the Church founded at Pentecost? To keep Peter from denying the Lord again? No—rather that all Christians working together might do a greater work. According to the Bible, God's plan is that Christ should save the world through the church—his bride and the mother of his children. It is written, "The Lord added to the church those who were saved."

It is essential that all should co-operate with the church in every way which will enthrone Christ everywhere. He who absents himself from the church is disloyal to the Saviour. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

Church Forum

WHAT ARE THE DIFFERENT MEANS OF CHURCH PUBLICITY?

The different ways and means of church publicity are the church press, the secular press, weekly calendars, a monthly local church paper, direct mail every member canvass, billboards, bulletin boards, paid advertising, hotels and clubs.

HOW EFFECT A PRACTICAL PUBLICITY CHURCH ORGANIZATION?

Public sentiment needs to be created in the church in the interests of church publicity that will command men and money to properly back up a worthwhile church publicity program.

A committee of carefully selected men with the pastor as chairman should make a study of the methods used in other churches, securing sample copies for examination. Original ideas may be presented for due consideration.

A definite agreement needs to be reached as to the means of publicity for a definite period, responsibilities being properly assigned.

A check up on results will serve for suggestions in improving the publicity program later.

Creamed Comments On S. S. Lesson

The design of this parable is to teach that those who improve their talents or faculties in the cause of religion—who improve them to their salvation and in doing good to others—shall be properly rewarded; but they who neglect their talents who neither secure their own salvation nor do good to others, will be punished.

V. 14. "For the kingdom of heaven is as a man travelling into a far country who called his servants and delivered unto them his goods. His servants may be interpreted as the apostles, Christian ministers, professing Christians and perhaps, all men. His goods may be the offices, abilities and opportunities for doing good."

V. 15. "And unto one he gave five talents, to another two and to another one; to every man according to his several ability; and straightway took his journey. God gives to each of us in proportion to our ability to use his gifts; if we increase our ability he will increase his gifts."

Vs. 16-17. "Then he that had received the five talents went and traded with the same and made them other five talents. Likewise he that had received two, he also gained the other two." Those endowed with different abilities were alike in that they equally obeyed the master and made the same percentage gain.

V. 18. "But he that received one, went and digged in the earth and hid his lord's money." This represents the conduct of those who neglect the abilities that God has given, and fail to do what he has required. This is often done: first on the plea that they do not occupy a high station; second that they have little ability and can do little good; thirdly that God had not given them as much as he gave others and therefore they will do nothing.

V. 19. "Now after a long time the lord of these servants cometh, and maketh a reckoning with them." Christ is to return again and take unto account the faithfulness of each one.

Vs. 20-21. "And he that received the five talents came and brought other five talents. His lord said unto him, well done, good and faithful servant." Those who rightfully improve their talents will eventually be promoted to great honors in heaven and be partakers of the joys of their Lord.

Vs. 22-23. "And he also that received the two talents came and said, lord, thou deliverest unto me two talents; lo, I have gained other two talents. And his lord said, well done, good and faithful servant." Reward is based on the faithful discharge of duty to the extent of one's ability.

Vs. 24-25. "Then he which had received the one talent came and said, lord, I knew that thou art a hard man, reaping where thou didst not sow and gathering where thou didst not scatter. And I was afraid and went away and hid thy talent in the earth; lo, thou hast: thine own." It is no credit just to keep on a dead level and never

Why was the Church founded at Pentecost? To keep Peter from denying the Lord again? No—rather that all Christians working together might do a greater work. According to the Bible, God's plan is that Christ should save the world through the church—his bride and the mother of his children. It is written, "The Lord added to the church those who were saved."

It is essential that all should co-operate with the church in every way which will enthrone Christ everywhere. He who absents himself from the church is disloyal to the Saviour. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

The design of this parable is to teach that those who improve their talents or faculties in the cause of religion—who improve them to their salvation and in doing good to others—shall be properly rewarded; but they who neglect their talents who neither secure their own salvation nor do good to others, will be punished.

V. 14. "For the kingdom of heaven is as a man travelling into a far country who called his servants and delivered unto them his goods. His servants may be interpreted as the apostles, Christian ministers, professing Christians and perhaps all men. His goods may be the offices, abilities and opportunities for doing good.

V. 15. "And unto one he gave five talents, to another two and to another one; to every man according to his several ability; and straightway took his journey. God gives to each of us in proportion to our ability to use his gifts; if we increase our ability he will increase his gifts.

Vs. 16-17. "Then he that had received the five talents went and traded with the same and made them other five talents. Likewise he that had received two, he also gained the other two." Those endowed with different abilities were alike in that they equally obeyed the master and made the same percentage gain.

V. 18. "But he that received one, went and digged in the earth and hid his lord's money." This represents the conduct of those who neglect the abilities that God has given, and fail to do what he has required. This is often done: first on the plea that they do not occupy a high station; second that they have little ability and can do little good; thirdly that God had not given them as much as he gave others and therefore they will do nothing.

V. 19. "Now after a long time the lord of these servants cometh, and maketh a reckoning with them." Christ is to return again and take into account the faithfulness of each one.

Vs. 20-21. "And he that received the five talents came and brought other five talents. His lord said unto him, well done, good and faithful servant." Those who faithfully improve their talents will eventually be promoted to great honors in heaven and be partakers of the joys of their Lord.

Vs. 22-23. "And he also that received the two talents came and said, lord, thou deliverest unto me two talents; lo, I have gained other two talents. And his lord said, well done, good and faithful servant." Reward is based on the faithful discharge of duty to the extent of one's ability.

Vs. 24-25. "Then he which had received the one talent came and said, lord, I knew that thou art a hard man, reaping where thou didst not sow and gathering where thou didst not scatter. And I was afraid and went away and hid thy talent in the earth; lo, thou hast thine own." It is no credit just to keep on a dead level and never climb; the cause of failure is often attributed to another.

Vs. 26-27. "But his lord answered and said unto him, thou wicked and slothful servant." The world does not call a man wicked who does not work but the lord does. The word "rest" is written on tombstones.

Vs. 28-29. "Take ye away therefore the talent from him and give it unto him that hath ten talents. For every one that hath shall be given and he shall have abundance; but from him that hath not, even that which he hath shall be taken away." The faithful use of any ability issues in more ability; so faith in God used increases; faith not used decreases and ability not used vanishes.

Gave Name to Pudding

The gelatinous pudding, "Nesselrode," containing chestnuts, was named for a Russian statesman and epicure. An ice cream containing chestnuts and candied fruit and garnished with whipped cream is also called Nesselrode pudding.

Catching Birds with Mirrors

Mirrors are used by the men employed to rid London of its superfluous pigeons. These birds, it seems, are very greedy, and are quick to seize any food before them. If another bird comes on the scene, the mirrors are used to produce "the other bird," and so enable the men to catch the pigeons while they are greedily devouring their attention to scattered corn.

Czechoslovakia Well Peopled

Czechoslovakia is slightly larger than Wisconsin and has five and a half times the population of that state. Villages and towns are about two miles apart, and cities of 15,000 to 20,000 population are encountered about every 15 miles. The average size of farms is about 25 acres.

Only Copy of Statue Remains

The celebrated statue of Athena which was in the Parthenon is no longer extant. A statuette not quite 3 1/2 feet high, evidently a copy of this great statue, was found in Athens in 1880. So far as we know, it remains in the National museum, in the Greek capital.—Washington Star.

Dr. Hitler Wins Pickaway Handicap Tourney

WINS POSSESSION OF LORMS CUP FOR YEAR; EARL RADER IS WINNER OF LOW GROSS PRIZE

Dr. Gay L. Hitler won the Pickaway Country Club's annual Decoration Day handicap and by virtue of his victory wins possession of the Lorms cup for one year. Tom O. Gilliland won the cup last year.

Dr. Hitler shot the best game he played all season to score an aggregate of 98 for the 18 holes. With his handicap of 30 strokes he scored a net count of 68, one stroke lower than George F. Wefler who had 69 net with a gross score of 105 with a handicap of 36. Wefler won 25 per cent of the entrance fee paid into the tournament.

Earl Rader scored the lowest 18 holes of the day in gross score when he covered the two nine hole laps in 90 strokes. He wins 25 per cent of the entrance fee in golf merchandise. Rader shot fine golf over the 18 to score his 90 gross.

The prize for most par and birdies holes was won by Dr. D. V. Courtwright, club president, who scored two pars and two birdies on the 18 holes. Dr. Courtwright won 15 per cent of the entrance fee in golf merchandise.

The prize for high gross was won by H. Stanley Lewis who scored 143 gross for 18 holes. Lewis was awarded 15 per cent of entrance fee in golf merchandise.

High gross score for three blind holes went to C. A. Weldon who shot 26 strokes on three blind holes. He won 10 per cent of the fee in golf merchandise.

Paul E. Adkins and Mack Mader tied for low on three blind holes each winning five per cent of the fee in merchandise.

The tournament was probably the most successful held by the club since its beginning with 38 entrants in the tourney and a large number more than that playing during the day. The tournament was very nicely handled by Frank Casey, club professional, who deserves much credit for its success.

Casey announces that he has a surprise for club members for next Sunday and although he dropped an inkling of what the surprise will be nothing definite has been announced by the professional.

TRACK SEASON

By DONALD RADER

The track season opened with Coach J. M. Guthrie having a squad of 12 cinder pounders, one being a letter man.

After training several weeks the tracksters visited Denison athletic field and Granville to participate in the district meet held there.

John Heiskell, star harrier, won the hundred and two twenty yard dashes, while Thomas, Circleville's distance runner, placed a second in the mile.

Not to be outpointed, "Web" Adkins scored a second place in the half mile and third in the mile.

The 880 yard dash relay team composed of Heiskell, Hill, Rader and Davis tallied two points by taking fourth place.

In the next meet of the season the Tigers clinched the Central Buckeye League track championship, by out scoring Granville, Granville, Westerville, and Bexley.

John Heiskell scored two points by winning the 100 and 220.

Not to be outdone "Web" Adkins placed second in the half mile and second in the mile. Hegele and Nickerson scored in the pole vault, and Hoffman scored in low and high hurdles. Circleville's 880 yard relay team came to the front when points were needed and won second place, pressing Grandview's anchor man hard. With a total of 48 points, the Red and Black tracksters won the Central Buckeye League championship of 1930.

In the state meet held at the Ohio Stadium, Webb Adkins, and John Heiskell only entries, failed to score.

The season ended with Heiskell, Thomas and Adkins receiving letters.

MAN TRANSFERRED TO CINCINNATI

Wilbur Bell, who was arrested Tuesday by constable Russell Rodgers of Scioto-twp on a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor and who was found guilty by Justice of Peace W. H. Dittrick of Ohio, was taken to the Cincinnati workhouse Saturday by Constable Rodgers in default of payment of fine and costs.

The will of the late Jacob Bowman of Circleville was filed in probate court Thursday.

By special request the contents of the will were not made known. The estate is estimated to be worth $17,300. Merrill M. and Daniel A. were named executors.

D. A. Marshall, William Lanman and W. H. Leist were appointed appraisers.

EAGLESON

Muskingum, being basketball captain for two years. He was on the city baseball and basketball teams while in Quaker City, and played on the faculty team in Cambridge.

MAKES IMPROVEMENTS

Mr. Eagleson has made many improvements in our high school in since holding the position as superintendent. Some of the changes were the classifying of pupils into nearly equal-ability groups, the replacing of new books, the revision of courses in woodwork and domestic science, the addition of the metal work shop, the trebling of commercial work, the selection of better trained teachers, teaching of more practical things, the addition of journalism, the printing of the school paper, the addition of the library, and the providing of the special education rooms.

Some of Mr. Eagleson's activities are confined to the Presbyterian church to which he has belonged since a boy when he joined at Old Washington. He was superintendent of the Sunday school while in Quaker, and was soon elected to the same position in the church after moving to Cambridge, which position he held till coming to Circleville. Having had experience as an elder in the Cambridge Presbyterian church previously, he was elected to that office in the local church in 1920. He still holds that office, and is also teacher of the Men's Bible class.

His interest in church work is shown in his elections in the said positions.

Politically, Mr. Eagleson is a Democrat, and is a friend of the former governor, Vic Donahey. He is acquainted with school people and superintendents over the country, and was taught while taking graduate work by noted educators of the United States.

Mr. Eagleson's paternal grandparents came from Ireland, and his maternal grandparents from Scotland. His father died in 1917, but his mother is still living in Cambridge.

He has two sisters, two of whom, Mrs. Nora Spear and Mrs. Mamie Willis, are deceased. Mrs. Charles Livingston resides in Cambridge. He has three children: Scott, who graduates from Muskingum college, his father's Alma Mater, in June; Allen, who is attending Ohio State University; and David, who is in the local public schools.

Currency Paper

The first distinctive paper adopted by the Department of the Treasury for its obligations and notes was a localized fiber paper adopted in 1863, which contained a localized jute fiber, and was used until 1870. Before that a special kind of membrane paper was used to some extent.

Revolutionary Disaster

In the battle of Camden Court House on August 15, 1780, about 3,000 Americans commanded by General Gates were defeated by from 2,000 to 2,500 British under the command of Lord Cornwallis. We lost 70 men and nearly all luggage and artillery. Baron de Kalb was mortally wounded on this occasion.

Nothing New in Meteorites

Meteorites are generally composed of stone often mixed with metallic iron. About thirty out of every hundred are nearly pure iron with a little nickel. The chemical elements occurring on the earth are found in meteorites, but no strange ones have been discovered.

Six Children Doctors

With the qualification of his daughter as a doctor, Mayor J. T. Hallinan of Lewisham, Ireland, believes his family holds a record in the medical world, for six of his children are now practicing. Five sons had previously passed examinations, one grandchild is studying medicine, and another, aged twelve, declares that she will be a doctor. Neither Hallinan nor his parents were physicians. All his sons served in France with the Royal Army Medical Corps, and two were decorated with the Military cross.

Barnhart Wins Costly Match With Nickerson

The scheduled golf match between Glenn I. Nickerson and Clarence Barnhart was played off Friday afternoon at Pickaway club with Mr. Nickerson losing the match with a score of 123 to 94. Both men have been practically diligently for the past few days for this match which involved the enormous stipulation of caddy fees, but from the time the match started until it ended there was no doubt about the winner.

It is reported by Barnhart that Nickerson even went so far as to have his picture taken while practicing his favorite shot out of a sand trap.

MISS ROUNDHOUSE CLASS COMPOSER

Representative Student Writes Song and Words For Seniors' Song.

By Elizabeth Roundhouse
Official senior class song has been announced, Miss Elizabeth Roundhouse is composer of words and music.

SENIOR CLASS SONG
Wherever we go tonight,
The world does not seem bright,
Gone are our days of happiness,
Those we will treasure from all of the rest.

Our memories fond will be
As we sail along life's sea,
Just one thing we must confess:
Those happy days at C. H. S.

Chorus
Our high school days are gone;
We wish they could go on!
We'd love to stay forever,
Just to be all together;
But now that we say good-bye,
We'll remember them until we die!

Such pleasant thoughts remain,
Though realities are not the same!

BROOKLYN ROBINS STEP OUT TO WIN HOLIDAY CONTESTS

BY COPELAND C. BURG

NEW YORK, May 31.—On Memorial Day they usually just talk about how history was made; but our Brooklyn Robins (notice how we all now admit Brooklyn is part of New York) are just a little bit different and they went out and made history. They pecked away at the Phils for a double win and today are zoom-zooming way out there in front in the National League grind.

In the morning game Clise Dudley held the Phillies to a lone tally, a homer by Chuck Klein, and won 11 to 1, while Del Bissone got a homer and all kinds of other blasts to the total of five in the tea-time tilt, which the Flock copped 11 to 9.

The crippled Cubs defied bad luck and misfortune and downed the haughty St. Louis Cards in a twin bill, 2 to 0 and 9 to 8. Charlie Root scored the shutout and in the night cap Frankie Frisch threw the game to the Bruins with a wild heave in the tenth, permitting the winning run. Rogers Hornsby broke his ankle sliding to third in the opener and may be out of the game for six weeks.

Maguire's doubles and Sisler's single, both coming in the ninth inning of each game, lowered the tobogganing Giants still further as the Braves won twice. The score in both tilts was 6-to-5.

Babe Ruth whacked his 15th homer, Lou Gehrig got his 11th and Herbie Pennock and Charlie Ruffing did some fancy hurling as the advancing Yanks went into third place in the American hook-up. They grabbed both ends of a double header from the Red Sox, 6 to 5 and 7 to 3.

Al Simmons' homer with two on in the ninth tilted the matinee game, 7 to 6 as the Athletics won in 13 innings from Washington and this same Simmons pinch hitting in the second encounter homered with the bags bogged in the fifth to permit the second triumph 15 to 11.

Sorrell outpitched Hudlin, 5 to 2, and Hogsett was better than Ferrell, 9 to 6, as Detroit won twice dropping Cleveland to fourth place.

Red Lucas hurled the Reds to a 9 to 1 victory over the Pirates but the Bucs took the evening chapeau 7 to 6 with Spencer, a rookie, silencing the Reds in the final frame after Kremer was yanked.

Three runs in the 10th boosted the White Sox over the Browns, 7 to 4 but St. Louis won the second one, 4 to 3, the Hose making six errors.

MUNICIPAL MERGERS
As the census figures come in, and city after city is disappointed in its total, the question of annexation becomes a live one. Cities and towns have not yielded to the modern tendency to consolidation as much as have business institutions. Communities which have visibly grown together, and which may be functioning practically as one for economic purposes, still maintain their separate political organizations and identities.
Big communities which have spawned populous suburbs often find themselves closed in by a relentless ring. The suburbanites, when away from home, unhesitatingly give the parent city as their residence, because it is well known and they are proud to be associated with it. Yet, at home they stubbornly stand aside with their separate set of officials, even though it creates awkwardness and confusion in adjusting public utility services, taxes, educational systems, traffic regulations, etc.
Census year, with its emphasis on population, tends to change this attitude. Citizens of parent cities and daughter cities alike come to feel the injustice of the census totals and the wrong impression given by them. They realize more clearly that communities which are one economically and socially should be one politically. So there is a strong movement for municipal mergers, either through annexation of the smaller units to the larger, or through borough systems, which, uniting the whole group of municipalities in a sort of federal plan, leave the outlying units self-government in local matters.

ANTI-THUMB RULES
Two or three states have outlawed the solicitation of automobile rides by thumb-jerkers and hitch-hikers. This is done on the grounds that the practice is a nuisance, develops wrong habits in children and exposes drivers to unforeseen dangers. Various cities are following suit.
In one city there is a slight variation. "Thumbing" is not actually forbidden, but the "thumber" is obliged to do his soliciting from the curb or sidewalk instead of standing in the street as such beggars usually do.
This moderate rule, if not the more important stringent regulation, would be a good thing anywhere. Ride-beggars crowding in to the street and standing in the way of approaching cars expose themselves to the danger of getting run over. They subject drivers to unwarranted annoyance and often cause wrecks by making the drivers swerve suddenly to avoid hitting them.
There is no more reason why any class of pedestrians should stand in the street than there is why motorists should drive on the sidewalk.

MOURNING FOR LAW
After a South Carolina mob attacked a sheriff, took his prisoner from him, tied the latter to a tree and shot him to death, the Columbia Record said:
"For this deed, every courthouse in the state should be hung with mourning."
It looks like a fruitful suggestion. The way to cure a great shame is to make it obvious and memorable, to take it home to everybody concerned. A lynching violates law and justice, and should therefore be observed fittingly by draping the home of justice in mourning. Let it be done hereafter in every state where a lynching occurs.

TRUE HISTORY IN GRANITE
More argument about the 500-word history of the United States written by Calvin Coolidge that Gutzon Borglum is carving on the rock in the Black Hills of South Dakota. It appears that the sculptor edited the statesman's copy, and Borglum is a better sculptor than copy reader.
Even so, when Mr. Coolidge represents the Declaration of Independence as standing for "the eternal right to seek happiness through self-government and the divine duty to defend that right at any sacrifice," we don't quite get him. We have a right to seek happiness through self-government. And we may agree that we have a right to defend that right—to fight for independence as a help to happiness. But what has "duty" to do with it? And especially, what has "divine duty" to do with it? If we take our Christian teaching literally, our "divine duty" is not to fight for anything, least of all for the privilege of having our own way about things.
Neither do we get Mr. Coolidge when he describes the Constitution as "a declaration of the rights of man."

But Jan grumbled that he had been drinking too much. "I'd like to see you sober for once." And Clay sulkily went to sit with Fifi, slipping his arm around her with a malicious grin at his wife. "For goodness' sake, Elma, let's start something. No use holding up the party for Lilas Allan. Why you're so sold on that woman I can't imagine. Know her when she was Lil Digby, I did, and not a cent to her name. Before she married old Tod Allan and took him for heavy alimony. She—"
Elma spoke from the window. "She! Here she comes."
It was nothing less than an entrance Lilas made. She was languid, impersonal, standing inside the door, running her eyes coldly over the crowd. Green appeared to be her favorite color; she wore a soft, draped wrap of chartreuse velvet over a frock of the same shade and a green scarf was wrapped turban-wise about her head. She was like a figure from a bizarre poster when she graciously decided to smile, walking over and disposing her thinness on a cushion before the fire.

limited powers under an independent President. Congress and Court.
With "limited powers," how can the three branches of our government be called independent? They cannot be independent of the people. They are not independent of each other. The President makes a treaty and Congress may kill it. Congress passes a tariff bill and the President may kill it. President and Congress together therefore make the mental make-up of the Supreme Court; the Supreme Court may under legislation enacted by Congress and approved by the President. The three branches are "independent."
It is well to keep these things straight, in our thinking and on eternal granite for future generations to read.

AT THE CLIFTONA
Richard Arlen is seen as a swaggering, bragging and wholly lovable lover in his featured role in "The Light of Western Stars," which opens at the Cliftona theatre Sunday. With a part closely resembling his inimitable role in "The Virginian," Arlen gives a great portrayal in this Zane Grey outdoor action-romance.
Mary Brian is the heroine of this thrilling story and she is here every bit as sweet as she was in "The Virginian," or in "Burning Up," in which she was seen with Arlen recently. The story is exciting and fast-moving, and replete with spectacular scenes, such as a gigantic wild horse stampede which would be hard to match for realism and startling beauty.
"The Light of Western Stars" in novel form was one of the best-sellers of the year. Paramount has captured the true spirit of the moving story. Arlen, a young cattle foreman, in a moment of desperation, vows to marry the first white woman he meets. That woman happens to be Mary Brian, who resents his insult. In a succession of adventurous events, Arlen manages to offset his initial poor impression and wins the girl.
There are several excellent humorous roles in the story, portrayed by Harry Green, whose dialect comedy is funnier than ever in this strange setting, and by William LeMaire, the garrulous sentinel of "Only the Brave." Fred Kohler furnishes the thrills as the badman who comes between Arlen and his girl.
"The Light of Western Stars" is well worth seeing for its romance, its thrills, its spectacle, or its humor, but, chiefly, we recommend it for its great all-around entertainment.

AT THE METROPOLITAN
The most gorgeous dance and musical ensembles ever seen since talking pictures were perfected forms the climax of one of the many startling stage numbers of "The Great Gabbo," James Cruze's first all-talking, singing and dancing spectacle, which comes to the screen of the Metropolitan theatre, for three days, beginning Sunday.
As a smashing concluding touch to a long list of original song numbers, the grand finale rings down the curtain on the stage sequences, which one critic describes as "a series of happy interludes in one of the most dramatic spectacles ever recorded on celluloid."
Over 500 girl and boy choristers take part in the grand finale of "The Great Gabbo," accompanied by a symphony orchestra of 125 instrumentalists under the baton of Howard Jackson.
Against a kaleidoscopic background, shimmering with color and movement, the entire chorus ensemble stage a music and dance medley, the like of which has never been seen on the screen.
Erich von Stroheim is a stellar dramatic player in "The Great Gabbo." Betty Compson has the leading feminine role. The other players headlined in the large cast are Donald Douglas and Margie (Babe) Kane.

Guard Against Fatigue---

It Has Much to Do with Accidents

Warns Dr. Copeland

That "Let Down" Period of the Day Is When Senses Are Dulled and Persons Become Careless—Don't Overdo. There's a Limit to Human Endurance.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

There is no doubt that a large number of accidents are due to carelessness. They are met in industrial life, among the thousands who go to business every day in the great cities and on the highways. With the popular use of automobiles the number of accidents is increasing at an alarming rate. With the growing use of machinery in the small, as well as the large industries, there are greater hazards to life and limb. The speeding up of life in general contributes to the dangers of modern existence.
Safety devices, safety measures and "safety first" publicity have lessened the dangers to some extent. But in spite of them the rate of increase in accidents is appalling.
An investigation into the causes of street accidents made in New York City revealed the fact that the number of accidents reached its highest peak between four and five in the afternoon. At this time of day school children, office workers and laborers are on their way home after a hard day's work.
Fatigue has a great deal to do with accidents. When you are tired you are less alert, less watchful, and more indifferent to it. There can be no doubt that in calling weary strenuous effort is required accidents are sure to be more frequent during the period of greatest fatigue. There are other factors, of course, but we must consider this. There is a limit to human endurance. The limitation of bodily and mental effort must be properly met. It is not good for anybody to work so hard or in such a form of work as to be habitually tired. A certain amount of fatigue is good for everybody, but beyond a certain point it wears out body and mind. Not alone does it make you more liable to accidents, but it is bad for the heart and for the nervous system.
Hours of work for policemen, engineers, truck drivers and chauffeurs should be short enough so that body and mind shall be at their best. We should not overlook the importance of this statement.
Owners of factories and mills have co-operated with industrial commissions, State and Federal laws have been made to advance health and safety, and the public there is still much to be done to rearrange our social system so that more accidents shall be avoided.
There are many accidents among children in industry. Children are more prone to accidents than adults if they are near dangerous machinery. We should make a special study of children's accidents in industry with a view to preventing them.
Economic stress forces many of our boys and girls into industry before their grammar school education is completed. Medical men in general agree that the transition from the comparatively easy five-hour school day to the confining eight-hour, or more, day in the factory, office and mercantile establishment is not the best thing for the adolescent child.
Health hazards and hazards of life are, indeed, all too common. Safety campaigns are needed to impress on the public the importance of avoiding accidents. In time all the factors of danger will be studied and correction will follow.

The three branches are "independent."

It is well to keep these things

The party swirled into activity. They played forfeits; told fortunes by writing secret wishes on little scraps of paper and laying these on the coals. If the scraps burned quickly the wishes were to come to pass, but if the wind carried them up the chimney disappointment waited.

They were to bob for apples, but Lilas refused that in her bored drawl. "Too awfully messy, isn't it? On such a night." She shivered gracefully and she listened for a moment to the wind howl about crumbling walls.

"But we can shoot crap," piped Fifi and they screamed with glee. "What dem bones? Lead me to 'em—leave me at dem bones—"

Nory produced a pair of dice and they knelt in a circle, eyes a gleam.

"Come, yo' babies, be good to poppa. Ack powerful pretty fo' yo' poppa. Come yo' seven! seven!"

Toward midnight Elma said they must have supper. Chicken salad on paper plates, thin bread and butter sandwiches, coffee from steaming thermos bottles. It was then that Lilas turned toward Ken as if she were seeing him for the first time.

"Aren't you doing a new sort of work?" she asked. "I came across some things in 'Artistry.' Curious departure, isn't it?"

He was alert and eager. "You liked it?"

"Well, yes." She gave him a sideways glance, her green eyes luminous.

He laughed in an embarrassed way, made light of the sketches. "Just an experiment. Prefer my usual method, of course. Everybody's so insistent, always wanting something new."

"You have trouble, too?" She moved a trifle nearer and her wide, smiling mouth swept him. That look seemed to isolate them, hold them in some warm, secret bond. "But it's so essential to save individuality. After all, one knows what one can do best."

They still were talking to magic, still were isolated in that magic warmth when the party broke up. Ken found the green wrap, put it about the tall girl in a lingering way, hovered uncertainly while Eve waited, pretending to help Elma with the rugs, the cushions.

Nory caught her glance and sauntered over. "Hope you'll let me see that you get home safely, Miss Allan?" After this spooky broke up. Ken found a fine protection against spooks I am. Besides my so-called car is AWOL—have to walk unless you're going to be kind—"

He slipped a hand under the sleeve of the green wrap and led her out into the pale moonlight.

straight, in our thinking and on eternal granite for future generations to read."

Caught Popular Fancy

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle created the character Sherlock Holmes. He is now a kind of figure of speech since the character has grown to be so popular. He was a detective whose methods were somewhat unusual.

Idea of Worship

The various modes of worship which prevailed in the Roman world were all considered by the people as equally true; by the philosopher as equally false, and by the magistrate as equally useful.—Edward Gibbon.

"Interesting," Ken muttered over the way home. "Knows art—been studying my stuff—think of that, Eve. Invited us for tea tomorrow."

"Us?" Outrage in her tone, but he did not notice.

"Yes. Going to show us some of her work. Landscapes. Interesting girl . . ."

Never any reason for Eve to prod and pry in order to follow the roving of her husband's light fancies. His naive eagerness at the beginning of each new flirtation might have seemed enormously funny to anybody else, but tonight it was a leaden weight hanging upon her spirit.

Sleepily undressing in the big bedroom, she glanced at him standing before the dresser, running his military brushes over his hair, ruffling it in a fashion that made him look boyish and very irresponsible, twisting his head to catch the effect from the side.

"Been in Paris ever since last winter," he rambled thoughtfully. "She had a studio there. Nice of her to want us so soon."

"Us?" Eve repeated, though this time with a wry little smile. "She doesn't want me, you know. But I suppose she figures she must take the thorn with the rose. It's you she's interested in."

He whirled about, looked at his wife sharply. "What makes you think that?" he wanted to know with interest. A new light flashed across his dark eyes, a glow of life pouring over his body grown rather set and deliberate with concentrated labor of the past weeks.

"It's what someone—Nietzsche I think—calls 'ewig weibliche.' A lamb. The eternal feminine. A little kind of disposition lovely ladies have." She laughed. Impossible to be long exasperated with the small boy that lived in the tall, husky man she had married.

"But Miss Allan isn't interested in me," he answered quickly. "It's my stuff. She's been watching it, mulling over those new things. They're not quite—well, typical."

"Ken," Eve cried. "You know perfectly well that's the most successful work you've done at all! Miss Banks, down at 'Artistry,' told me it was a sensation—everyone's talking about it—everyone that knows what's what. They say you've originated a new type of illustration—that dozens are trying to imitate it. Proud of that—can't you feel this, Ken? Let someone like Miss Allan turn you against it! A dabbler—what has she ever done that gives her a right to criticize? Ken, you won't give this up?"

"Fragrants' Plain People
The librarian of the Peabody Institute says: "The records of the Mayflower compact are silent as to the place of origin of most of the immigrants, and, in fact, I have found but one in which a definite place name is given. It would appear that nearly all of the immigrants were plain people, i.e., artisans, who would be unlikely to have left estates."

Tree Needs Tropical Climate
The Litchee or Litchi grows successfully only in southern China, Ceylon, India and the Philippines. It has been grown experimentally in southern Florida and southern California, but will not thrive except in a tropical climate.

Theatres

AT THE CLIFTONA

Richard Arlen is seen as a swaggering, bragging and wholly lovable lover in his featured role in "The Light of Western Stars," which opens at the Cliftona theatre Sunday. With a part closely resembling his inimitable role in "The Virginian," Arlen gives a great portrayal in this Zane Grey outdoor action-romance.

Mary Brian is the heroine of this thrilling story and she is here every bit as sweet as she was in "The Virginian," or in "Burning Up," in which she was seen with Arlen recently. The story is exciting and fast-moving, and replete with spectacular scenes, such as a gigantic wild horse stampede which would be hard to match for realism and startling beauty.

"The Light of Western Stars" in novel form was one of the best-sellers of the year. Paramount has captured the true spirit of the moving story. Arlen, a young cattle foreman, in a moment of desperation, vows to marry the first white woman he meets. That woman happens to be Mary Brian, who resents his insult. In a succession of adventurous events, Arlen manages to offset his initial poor impression and wins the girl.

There are several excellent humorous roles in the story, portrayed by Harry Green, whose dialect comedy is funnier than ever in this strange setting, and by William LeMaire, the garrulous sentinel of "Only the Brave." Fred Kohler furnishes the thrills as the badman who comes between Arlen and his girl.

"The Light of Western Stars" is well worth seeing for its romance, its thrills, its spectacle, or its humor, but, chiefly, we recommend it for its great all-around entertainment.

AT THE METROPOLITAN

The most gorgeous dance and musical ensembles ever seen since talking pictures were perfected forms the climax of one of the many startling stage numbers of "The Great Gabbo," James Cruze's first all-talking, singing and dancing spectacle, which comes to the screen of the Metropolitan theatre, for three days, beginning Sunday.

As a smashing concluding touch to a long list of original song numbers, the grand finale rings down the curtain on the stage sequences, which one critic describes as "a series of happy interludes in one of the most dramatic spectacles ever recorded on celluloid."

Over 500 girl and boy choristers take part in the grand finale of "The Great Gabbo," accompanied by a symphony orchestra of 125 instrumentalists under the baton of Howard Jackson.

Against a kaleidoscopic background, shimmering with color and movement, the entire chorus ensemble stage a music and dance medley, the like of which has never been seen on the screen.

Erich von Stroheim is a stellar dramatic player in "The Great Gabbo." Betty Compson has the leading feminine role. The other players headlined in the large cast are Donald Douglas and Margie (Babe) Kane.

Guard Against Fatigue---

It Has Much to Do with Accidents

Warns Dr. Copeland

That "Let Down" Period of the Day Is When Senses Are Dulled and Persons Become Careless—Don't Overdo. There's a Limit to Human Endurance.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York.

Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

THERE is no doubt that a large number of accidents are due to carelessness. They are met in industrial life, among the thousands who go to business every day in the great cities and on the highways. With the popular use of automobiles the number of accidents is increasing at an alarming rate.

With the growing use of machinery in the small, as well as the large industries, there are greater hazards to life and limb. The speeding up of life in general contributes to the dangers of modern existence.

Safety devices, safety measures and "safety first" publicity have lessened the dangers to some extent. But in spite of them the rate of increase in accidents is appalling.

An investigation into the causes of street accidents made in New York City revealed the fact that the number of accidents reached its highest peak between four and five in the afternoon. At this time of day school children, office workers and laborers are on their way home after a hard day's work.

Fatigue has a great deal to do with accidents. When you are tired you are less alert, less watchful of danger and more indifferent to it. There can be no doubt that in any calling where strenuous effort is required accidents are sure to be more frequent during the period of great fatigue. There are other factors, of course, but we must consider this. There is a limit to human endurance. The limitation of bodily and mental effort must be properly met. It is not good for anybody to work so hard or in such a form of work as to be habitually tired. A certain amount of fatigue is good for everybody, but beyond a certain point it wears out both body and mind. Not alone does it make you more liable to accidents, but it is bad for the heart and for the nervous system.

Hours of work for policemen, engineers, truck drivers and chauffeurs should be short enough so that body and mind shall be at their best. We should not overlook the importance of this statement.

Owners of factories and mills have co-operated with industrial commissions, State and Federal laws have been made to advance health and safety of the public. But there is still much to be done to make our social system so that more accidents shall be avoided.

There are many accidents among children in industry. Children are more prone to accidents than adults if they are near dangerous machinery. We should make a special study of children's accidents in industry with a view to preventing them. Economic stress forces many of our boys and girls into industry before their grammar school education is completed. Medical men in general agree that the transition from the comparatively easy five-hour school day to the confining eight-hour, or more, day in the factory, office and mercantile establishment is not the best thing for the adolescent child.

Health hazards and hazards of life are, indeed, all too common. Safety campaigns are needed to impress on the public the importance of avoiding accidents. In time all the factors of danger will be studied and correction will follow.

The Ne Plus Ultra Sunday School class of the M. E. church met on Tuesday evening, May 27 at the home of Mrs. Clarence Patrick with forty members and guests present. The meeting was opened at eight o'clock by all singing "Loyalty to Christ" with Mrs. W. A. Raub, the president presiding. After the song "All Alone" the president offered prayer and read the Scripture lesson found in the 13th chapter of Corinthians. The song "Yield Not To Temptation" was followed by the reading of the minutes for April meeting and the calling of the roll by the secretary Mrs. Lucy Davis. The study course chapter was discussed by Mrs. Helen Ellis and the subject was "The Two Foundations." The meeting was given to the program committee composed of Mesdames Margarite Hall, Lilly Pontious, Grace Whitset, Mary Waite, Golden Minser and Gladys Kerns the entertaining committee for April.

The ruling has been made that the last entertaining committee shall put on the program for the present meeting. Mrs. Hall being the chairman she presented the following program, a flower contest and a chewing gum contest were very amusing, especially the chewing contest when everyone was to make something out of her wad of gum, and Mrs. Frances Kreisel won easily the prize with her miniature pig which was very cleverly made. The hostesses served Neapolitan ice cream, home made cake and coffee.

Mrs. Robert Blanchard of Kingsport, Tenn. arrived on last Thursday to spend a month with relatives. She was the guest of honor at a dinner party at the home of Mrs. Walter Parker of Whistler on Tuesday. Other guests were Mrs. Louella Brundige and Misses Ella and Josephine Brundige and on Wednesday Mr. Blanchard and Mrs. Rannie Baker were the guests of Mrs. Mamie Boggs at the Boggs hotel in Circleville.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shoemaker were visitors to Columbus on Monday.

Stars in American Flag

Properly speaking, it is incorrect to claim that each star in the national flag represents some particular state. All 48 stars in the flag represent the states collectively and not individually. Some writers base the arrangement of the stars according to the dates of ratification of the Constitution or admission to the Union.

Snake Birth

The most logical reason for the presence of young live snakes in the body of a mother snake has been given by several naturalists, who say that snakes have two ways of discharging their young; either by laying eggs or by giving birth to their young alive after having been developed inside the mother snake.

Life-Saving Ball

A new sort of life-saving device consists of a metal ball of light weight. It is designed to be hurled to the vicinity of a drowning person by means of a catapult of simple design from the shore or the deck of a boat. The sphere is supplied with hand holds for the use of the unfortunates.

Zonite

For Cuts and Wounds
Prevent infection! Treat every cut, wound or scratch with this powerful non-poisonous antiseptic. Zonite actually kills germs. Helps to heal, too.

DON'T BE A SLAVE TO LAXATIVES

Mrs. E. Gebbard, 301 W. 5th St., Newport, Ky., says, "My husband and I were actually slaves to laxatives, continually dosing ourselves with something to relieve constipation. Just couldn't stop. It got to be a habit. We even gave our children laxatives in candy form. Little did we realize that we were only aggravating and not reaching the cause of the constipation. Headaches, biliousness, indigestion and constipation still continued.
Our druggist recommended Carter's Little Liver Pills. He said these little vegetable pills would tone up the liver, stir up the bile, which, acting as an antiseptic, keeps the food from rotting, and poisoning the blood. They are not habit forming and thoroughly cleanse the upper and lower bowel. Laxatives fail to do this."
Carter's Little Liver Pills are sold at all Druggists in 25c red paper pkgs.

EDITOR'S POLICIES

With this publication the Red and Black Staff will have completed its third year in editing our weekly school publication in the Circleville Herald.

During the past year our school paper has progressed considerably. Many new features have been added to our columns, together with all new casts for almost every topic.

Several new members together with several honorary members have been enrolled in Quill and Scroll, International Honorary Society for High School Journalists.

During the past year the Red and Black has attempted to bring to you all school-news throughout the city, as well as better acquaint you with the progress being made in the school.

In many instances our reporters have reported so much news from various elementary schools and other sources, that it was impossible to use all.

However next year we will attempt, through the courtesy of the Herald, to add more space or more publications to our school paper, so that all news reported to us, that interests the community, may be brought to the public.

At this time the Editor wishes to express his gratification to all who so ably assisted in making the Red and Black such a success the last year, and next year hopes to accommodate all news sources in the best way possible.

Pat Kirwin,

GOOD-BYE—GOOD LUCK

In relinquishing my office, I wish to thank the public for their interest, the Herald force for their professional aid, and all who have offered suggestions for the betterment of the paper. It is my wish that the Red and Black continue for years to come in an even more effective manner in the hands of its new staff.

—Reynold Greene.

NOTICE

As our readers have probably noted, all articles written by members of the journalism class in the issue of the Herald are signed.

This is not for the purpose of gaining publicity, but for the purpose of putting the responsibility for the article on the writer.

SUMMER

Alice Mary Griner
 Summer! At last you're here, we've waited so long through the winter dear.
 We've studied and studied the whole year through,
 Wishing, and waiting and longing for you.
 So now that you have so well-come come
 There'll be games played and races run,
 There'll be swimming and hiking the whole day through,
 With fishing and playing too.
 The girls will be reading and playing with dolls,
 The boys will be fishing and playing with balls,
 So now that you've come, oh summer dear,
 We're glad that you've chased away winter so dear.

THE CIRCUS PARADE

Hildeburn Jones, Jr.
 When the circus comes to town,
 With its animals, acrobats, and clowns
 All the children go to see
 The parade with the manag-
 The boxing kangaroo, the funny chimpanzee,
 All make the children dance and shout with glee.
 But all the same the children go to see,
 The circus parade with its manag-
 They love to feed the elephants,
 And watch the funny clowns.
 But every time the circus comes around, they all go to see,
 The circus parade with its manag-
 erie.

SCHOOL

Jane Littleton
 What is this summer going to be?
 With out the school friends they used to be.
 There's picnics, parties, plays, things, but none the joy that school brings.

We're all very glad when summer here.
 But we like it better when school is near.

Summer's all right with its lazy days.
 But school is better, with its joyous days.

EDITOR'S POLICIES

With this publication the Red and Black Staff will have completed its third year in editing our weekly school publication in the Circleville Herald.

During the past year our school paper has progressed considerably. Many new features have been added to our columns, together with all new casts for almost every topic.

Several new members together with several honorary members have been enrolled in Quill and Scroll, International Honorary Society for High School Journalists.

During the past year the Red and Black has attempted to bring to you all school-news throughout the city, as well as better acquaint you with the progress being made in the school.

In many instances our reporters have reported so much news from various elementary schools and other sources, that it was impossible to use all.

However next year we will attempt, through the courtesy of the Herald, to add more space or more publications to our school paper, so that all news reported to us, that interests the community, may be brought to the public.

At this time the Editor wishes to express his gratification to all who so ably assisted in making the Red and Black such a success the last year, and next year hopes to accommodate all news sources in the best way possible.

Pat Kirwin,

GOOD-BYE—GOOD LUCK

In relinquishing my office, I wish to thank the public for their interest, the Herald force for their professional aid, and all who have offered suggestions for the betterment of the paper. It is my wish that the Red and Black continue for years to come in an even more effective manner in the hands of its new staff.

—Reynold Greene.

NOTICE

As our readers have probably noted, all articles written by members of the Journalism class in the issue of the Herald are signed.

This is not for the purpose of gaining publicity, but for the purpose of putting the responsibility for the article on the writer.
